Description:

This map shows Iowa at a very early stage of development and includes part of southern Minnesota. This interesting map from the New Universal Atlas shows only 31 counties in the eastern half of the state. The remainder of the state is shaded yellow and contains Indian names and a section of the state marked "neutral ground". The map also shows towns and waterways. One of the earliest obtainable maps of Iowa. Mitchell's pre-1850 maps are becoming increasingly rare and difficult to obtain.
